Gun club may be pollution risk

SPENT shotgun pellets from a local clay target club may pose a public lead pollution problem the Mayor of Redcliffe said yesterday.

Ald Alf Charlish said council was concerned requests for tests on lead shot accumulation at the Redcliffe City Clay Target Club had not been received for close scrutiny.

He said the council had asked the Department of Environment to study lead accumulation from the use of shotguns at the range.

"There is an element of risk, so we want to make sure no problem exists and that no future problem will occur," Ald Charlish said.

He said a petition with 249 signatures had been sent to the council raising the lead pollution matter.
